

Call for Papers

The journal Philobiblon - Transylvanian Journal of Multidisciplinary Research in the Humanities, indexed in international databases, published by the “Lucian Blaga” Central University Library in Cluj-Napoca, welcomes scholarly articles and book reviews for its upcoming issues published in June and December 2018. The issues will be thematic, celebrating the anniversary of the Great Union of 1918.

The studies, articles or reviews proposed for publication should focus on two main subjects:

- The theme of the first issue, published in June 2018 is “The Romanians and the Great War”. Submission deadline: 28 February 2018.
- The theme of the second issue, published in December 2018 is “The Romanians and the Great Union of 1918”. Submission deadline: 31 August 2018.

The articles submitted for publication must be sent to the editorial office address: philobiblon.cluj@gmail.com

Philobiblon encourages multidisciplinary studies in various fields of the humanities. The primary condition for publication is that the subject of the submitted article should fit the framework set by the logo Ideas-Books-Society-Readings. Articles submitted should be multidisciplinary in their approach, and deal with subjects in the areas of (including, but not limited to) history, history of culture, philosophy, ethics, aesthetics, anthropology, sociology, literary theory and criticism, linguistics, art history, and library and information science.

Philobiblon is an open and dynamic forum for research that brings a productive multidisciplinary contribution to the vast field of books and culture, being in a continuous process of reassessment in relation with today's information society.

We prefer articles submitted in English, but we also accept texts in Romanian and Hungarian. After the articles have been accepted by the internal reviewers, the editorial office may require that the author submit an English translation of his/her text.

The articles submitted for publication must not exceed 50.000 characters, including the footnotes and annexes.

Our journal does not charge publication fees.
