

Prof. dr. Sarah Schoenmaekers

Professor of European Economic Law, Maastricht University

Endowed Professor of European Law, Open Universiteit

Professor of Construction Law, Hasselt University

Director of studies master programmes, faculty of law, Maastricht University

Sarah Schoenmaekers is professor of European Economic Law at Maastricht University, endowed professor of European Law at the Open Universiteit, professor of Construction Law at Hasselt University and a practising lawyer in Belgium.

At Maastricht University she is the director of studies of all master programmes in law.

She has been successful in acquiring public money and has obtained a Jean Monnet module for setting up the course 'State aid and Public Procurement in the EU'. She teaches this course next to the courses 'European Competition Law' and 'Construction Law'.

Sarah frequently publishes on European integration and public procurement in (inter)national journals, has edited several books and has organised several conferences. She has been the project leader of several research projects relating to the free movement of professionals in the EU.

She is a visible member of the academic community.