

Doctoral School in Sociology

Doctoral supervisors

Albert Lőrincz Enikő

Sociopsychology of health, Prevention of school and social disadaptation, Prevention of drug abuse and addiction, Organizational psychosociology

Petru Iluț

Family and gender studies, Value Orientations, Sociology, Social psychology

Livia Popescu

Sociology of social problems, Social inclusion, Social policies and services, Gender inequalities

Traian Rotariu

Demography and sociology of population, Regional development, Urban and rural sociology, Social stratification and mobility, Sociology of education

Maria Roth

Evaluation of public programs and policies for vulnerable population, Sociology of childhood and youth, Violence in society, Educational sociology

Traian Vedinaș

Rural sociology, Sociology of religion, Sociology of education, Sociology of development, Sociology of sport, Social anthropology, Sociology of mentalities, Sociology of customs

Affiliated academic staff

Cristina Baci

Community development, Unemployment, Child protection (from bad treatment to adoption and child placing, to school counseling, etc.)

Lidia Berszan

Disability and inclusion, Elderly's social assistance, mental hygiene of elderly persons, Ethics of helping relations

Mircea Comsa

Electoral studies, Survey methodology and practice, Social desirability impact estimation

Cristina Faludi

Youth sexual and reproductive behavior, Artificial reproduction technologies and infertility, Elderly quality of life

Elemer Mezei

Statistics, Demography

Cornelia Muresan

Family behavior change in Romania and Europe, Family solidarity and vulnerability, Intergenerational relations, Vulnerable populations, Biographic events analysis

Valer Veres

Sociology of youth, Social structure and national identity, Demography and ethnicity in Transylvania

Description

The Doctoral School of Sociology has been established in 2002 under the leadership of Professor Traian Rotariu. The members of the School conduct research on social phenomena and problems, demography, social mobility, public policy, evaluation of social services and of social intervention programs, psycho-sociology of health and other branches of sociology. The mission of the Doctoral School of Sociology is to develop competent human resource in carrying out scientific research and innovation. It aims at:

- Acquiring advanced theories, methods and techniques of scientific research in social sciences and competence regarding the management of social research projects;
- Developing scientific thinking in order to identify, formulate and solve research problems, issues regarding the ethics of research within social sciences, and also for the formation of ethical attitudes in scientific research;
- Developing skills regarding documentation, elaboration and capitalization of scientific works;
- Acquiring communication skills in the academic areas through the use of international languages in oral communication and the writing of scientific papers.

The Doctoral School brings together professors from sociology and social work and thus offering a wide range of competences and interests.

Contact

http://socasis.ubbcluj.ro/index.php?option=com_content&view=article&id=24&Itemid=26